The quote "We will be saved by love and unity" belongs to Sergius of Radonezh. In his opinion, love is always an act of moving towards God. When we love, we open up our hearts to our loved ones. Sergius of Radonezh talked about unity in Christ. He blessed Prince Dmitry of Donskoy for his victory over Mamai on the field of Kulikovo.

I believe that if we all want to live in harmony, we need to learn how to put ourselves in the shoes of others. Firstly, we need to learn how to preserve what is sacred for people, their bond, the foundation of their unity and well-being. Secondly, we must be sacrificing, able to share our lives with others to eradicate evils of this world.

Next, I would like to present a few events that may help to shed light on this topic. Representatives from different social groups fought in the war against Napoleon in 1812. For the first time in history, a guerrilla campaign was launched. Both old and young people stood up in defense of their country. The example of uniting all people against the German invaders is particularly vivid and relevant. Love for the country, relatives and friends helped the people endure the hardships of the Great Patriotic War and rebuild the state. They also helped develop a strong economy and become the first to explore space.

Summing up, it seems that not everyone fully understands this concept today. It is necessary to bring people together with a common goal that will lift the human spirit and shield it from the damaging influence of immoral actions.
